

Knowledge Sharing with Mario Daniel Muñoz Ríos

Working Where You Live:
Industry, Environment, and
Everyday Life in El Salto, Jalisco, Mexico

Mario Daniel is a PhD candidate in Social Sciences at the University of Guadalajara and Visiting Graduate Researcher at the UCLA Institute of the Environment and Sustainability working with Dr. Alesia Montgomery. His research examines how industrialization affects labor, environmental conditions, and well-being in El Salto, Jalisco, Mexico, one of the country's most heavily industrialized and polluted areas. He uses mixed methods, combining socioeconomic, environmental, spatial, and qualitative data, to study the ties between industrial labor, environmental harm, and territorial inequality.

Spanish Session

Mon, Sept 21, 2026

3pm-4pm PT

Zoom

English Session

Fri, Sept 25, 2026

11am-1pm PT

UCLA Campus & Zoom

RSVP:

bit.ly/CXMDMR

Spots are limited, both in-person and virtually, so make sure you RSVP. Lunch will be provided for in-person attendees.